

Nixon In South, Foe Woos Farmers

By The Associated Press
VICE President Richard M. Nixon invaded the South again Monday in a new appeal for Dixie votes while his rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, sought to woo the farmer vote in the Illinois corn belt.

Each concentrated on complaints regarded regionally as soft spots in the opposition armor.

In Virginia and North Carolina, Nixon sought to capitalize on widespread southern dissatisfaction with the Democrat platform which many southerners feel is too liberal.

"Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave," the Republican presidential nominee told a noon day crowd in Richmond, Va., "if he could see the men who wrote the Democratic platform."

Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, assailed Republican farm policies. Hard times on the farm, he said, must not be allowed to develop to the point that "a Democratic administration must once again be called in to bail out the country."

"Time To Face Up"

In remarks prepared for a party rally at Springfield, Ill., Kennedy said:

"I say it is time to face up to our farm situation before we reach the bottom, before the price of corn falls any further, before any more farms are auctioned in distress, before there are any more proposals to get rid of the surpluses by getting rid of the farmer."

Hitting at both Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and at Nixon, Kennedy ridiculed the vice president's farm program as a "collection of old Benson fables under new Nixon labels."

Nixon, meanwhile, challenged Kennedy to say exactly where he agrees and where he disagrees with the Democratic platform.

"There has been some talk around the country that Sen. Kennedy really does not agree with a number of his platform pledges," Nixon said in remarks prepared for a rally at Charlotte, N.C. "I want him to state his views in exactly the same way in the North, the East, the South, the West, to everyone in every part of America will clearly understand his position."

Nixon, accompanied by his wife, Pat, left Washington after the vice president conferred at the White House with President Eisenhower for more than an hour on the diplomatic situation at the United Nations.

Pat First Lady

At the Washington airport, a group of supporters gave them a sendoff by launching "Pat for first lady week."

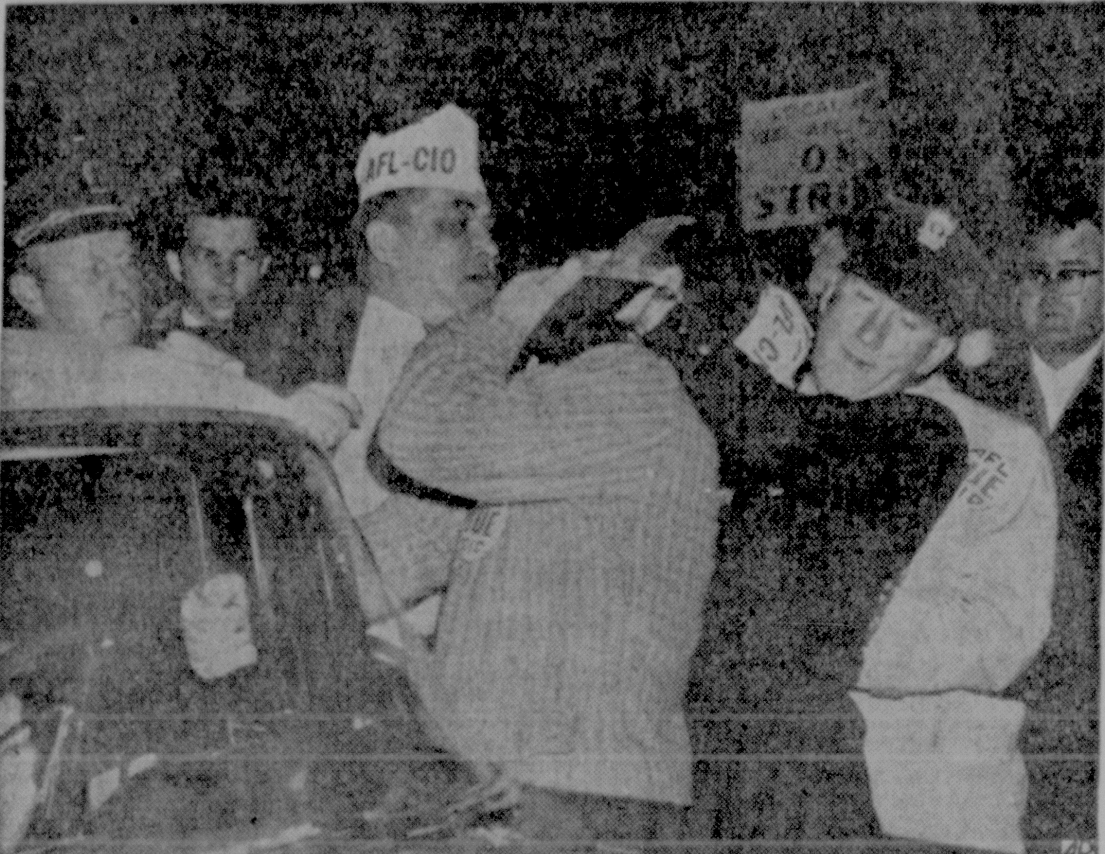

Elsewhere on the political scene:

Kennedy's vice presidential running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, described Nixon as "the greatest misjudger of this decade."

Campaigning at Teaneck, N.J., the Texas senator said Nixon misjudged the Cuban situation, the depth of Soviet accomplishments, America's prestige in Latin America and U.S. educational needs.

A member of the 1960 Republican "truth squad" claimed Kennedy was absent on more than one-fourth of the votes taken in the Senate in the 1953-59 period and added: "This (the presidency) is no job for a playboy."

The remark was made by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., as the squad opened for business at a press conference. Scott and other members of the squad headed by Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., took turns hammering at what they called "distortions and unfactual statements" by the Democratic presidential candidate.

FLARE-UP ON PICKET LINE — Police restrain strikers of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) outside General Electric's River Works plant in Lynn, Mass. Tempers flared when non-union employees reported for the late shift. A nationwide strike was called against GE by the union Oct. 2. (AP Wirephoto)

Skirmishes Hit GE Plant

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—General Electric company's strikebound switchgear division plant was shut down Monday by picketing and picket line skirmishes.

Police Commissioner Albert Brown, personally supervising some 250 policemen at the scene, was punched in the abdomen during one of the outbreaks. Brown was not injured and no arrests were made.

About 250 of the striking International Union of Electrical Workers members blocked five entrances to the plant, which employs about 5,300.

The union represents 3,051 of the plant's employees. The company said only about 100 persons got through the picket lines and that for all practical purposes the plant was inoperative.

After the disturbances quieted, Brown withdrew the policemen to help reduce the tension. "The temper of the crowd was getting pretty explosive," he said.

The bulk of pickets massed at the main gate, blocking the entrance. The company said this form of picketing was illegal.

Other striker and plant employees, some 1500, massed across the street from the plant but took no part.

Registrar Calls It Quits; Wed Many Thousands

LONDON (AP)—A man who's probably performed as many weddings as anyone else in the world bowed out Monday with the observation that he's all for it.

James Holiday, 63, head registrar at London's Caxton Hall, twice married himself, said he's retiring.

"I have married many, many thousands—just can't say how many thousands—and it's all been very nice."

As the superintendent-registrar at Caxton Hall in the center of London, Holiday performed the bulk of ceremonies for people who, for one reason or another, prefer a civil to a church wedding.

"Nowadays people don't go to a registrar office because they have to—I mean because they are divorced. We have a higher percentage of people married here who could go to church."

Holiday said his most outstanding matrimonial moment was marrying Sir Anthony Eden to the present Lady Eden.

"It was a memorable day," he added. "Sir Winston Churchill was lovely as best man. He looked like a baby—such a nice skin."

As a man who's seen countless marriages, he said the best advice he can give a married couple is, "Remember, marriage is a matter of give and take."

Second Bomb Scare Doesn't Materialize

NEW YORK (AP) — A hand-scribbled threat of another bomb blast in Times Square came Monday less than 24 hours after an explosion in the area injured seven persons.

However, as the day drew toward a close, the threat failed to materialize. It had vowed death to 100 people within a week.

Police swarmed into a crowded West 42nd St. movie house, halting the film and turned on the lights while a check was made. A note had been found in the theatre saying: "Please forgive me for the first bomb but I have to kill 100 people in one week. I am sick like before. Next bomb will be Oct. 3, 1960, on 42nd Street."

The area, a hub of tourist interest, throngs with pedestrians around the clock.

The note, hand-written in pencil on a slip of white paper, was signed, "The Sick." It was addressed to "Mr. Kennedy," presumably Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy.

Lowell Magnus, 31, of the Bronx, a patron in the Victory Theater at the time, told police he saw a small man in gray shirt and gray slacks drop the note and run into the lobby beside a candy machine.

Late Sunday, a home-made bomb went off in the northern part of the Times Square area, hurling a shower of dirt over passing pedestrians and vehicles.

300 Occupants Flee Building

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three hundred occupants of a nine-story center city office building were routed by smoke and heat from a five-alarm fire which burned Monday for four and a half hours.

At least 13 persons were treated for smoke inhalation. One fireman was cut.

Occupants fleeing from the building (1622 Chestnut St.) and fire equipment snarled traffic in the area for several hours.

Before the blaze was controlled an educational television station (WHYY) on an upper floor was forced to interrupt its telecasting.

Firemen said the blaze was centered in a third-floor stockroom of an F. W. Woolworth Co. store. Apparently the fire started in air conditioning ducts between the third and fourth floor.

Cubans Plan Entire Crop For Red Bloc

HAVANA (AP) — The real purpose behind Ernesto (Che) Guevara's forthcoming visit to Moscow is to negotiate the sale of Cuba's entire 1961 sugar crop to the Communist bloc through a gigantic barter deal, government sources said Monday.

Guevara, Cuban National Bank chief, leaves for the Soviet Union soon to take part in the Nov. 7 celebration of the Soviet Union's October Revolution.

Informants said, however, Guevara is using the observance as a cover for his real mission hopes of talking the Kremlin into buying all the sugar Cuba produces in return for the Communist bloc's right to become this island nation's sole supplier of imports.

There was no official confirmation of the reported plan, but well qualified Cuban sources say it already is on paper with Guevara proposing that the Communists buy all Cuban sugar, not only in 1961, but in years to come.

Such a deal would bind Cuba to dependence on the Soviet economy even closer than this year's petroleum agreement by which the Soviet Union supplies all Cuba's crude oil requirements.

The Communist bloc, including Red China, already is committed to taking more than one-third of Cuba's 1961 sugar crop.

Sugar experts here said the reported barter deal could upset operations of the world sugar stabilization agreement, to which Cuba subscribes. There have been growing indications that the Fidel Castro regime would like to withdraw from the world pact.

Nixon Challenges Kennedy Platform

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon challenged his opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, Monday "to say exactly where he agrees and where he disagrees" with the Democratic party platform.

"Thomas Jefferson would turn over in his grave," Nixon told a noonday crowd in Richmond, Va., "if he could see the men who wrote the Democratic platform."

The vice president returned to the same line of attack Monday night in remarks prepared for a rally here.

"There has been some talk around the country that Sen. Kennedy really does not agree with a number of his platform pledges," Nixon said. "And I want him to state his views in exactly the same way in the North, the East, the South, the West, so everyone in every part of America will clearly understand his position."

Cites Differences

Striking into the South for the seventh time, Nixon emphasized heavily what he said were differences in the Republican and Democratic parties.

"If you want a massive federal program to come in and weaken the states, don't vote for us," he said.

Time To Face Up To Farm Problem Kennedy Declares

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy said Monday night that agricultural hard times must not be allowed to develop to the point that a "Democratic administration must once gain be called in to bail out the country."

"I say it is time to face up to our farm situation before we reach the bottom, before the price of corn falls any further, before any more farms are auctioned in distress, before there are any more proposals to get rid of the surpluses by getting rid of the farmer," the Democratic presidential nominee said.

In a speech prepared for a party rally, the senator said "some of the experts are saying that this campaign is 1928 all over again."

"For the sake of the farmer, the worker, the merchant, and the teacher—for the sake of all those who remember the days of 10-cent corn and 10-cent interest—I trust it will not be 1928 over again."

Brought To Mind

This brought to mind former President Harry S. Truman's surprise 1948 victory which was attributed in part to a sudden shift of farm sentiment in the closing days of the campaign, chiefly in big corn states such as Illinois.

Kennedy referred to 1928 in the context of the drop in farm income which already had started and which economists say contributed to the Great Depression beginning in 1929.

But 1928 was also the year in which Alfred E. Smith was presidentially beaten for the presidency, a defeat he blamed largely on his Catholic religion.

Kennedy was moving Monday in an area in which his aides conceded there was some concern over the impact of his Catholic faith. But the senator, who has not touched on this issue in recent days, made only the obliquely 1928 reference to it.

In his speech Monday, the Democratic candidate came up with a new phrase for the program of Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He called it "collection of old Benson fables under new Nixon labels."

The Nixon-Benson program, based on a three-year moving average of previous market prices, can only drive farm income down, he asserted. "And when income drops on the farm, it drops in the town and then in the city."

Kennedy made seven motorcade appearances in the industrial area around East St. Louis, Ill., before flying to the economically hardpressed area of southern Illinois. He made four appearances in that section, then boarded his plane again to come here.

Hope For

Nixon strategists hope the vice president's repeated Dixie forays will help carry a number of Southern states, as President Eisenhower did in 1956 and 1962. And they hope the strong Democratic civil rights plank will alienate Southerners and swing them into the GOP column.

At Charlotte, Nixon said "Time and time again Sen. Kennedy has promised to carry out all the irresponsible contradictions bundled into the 1960 Democratic platform, adopted in Los Angeles."

"He changed his mind a bit on this in our debate last week."

Khrush Wants Confession Prior To Talks With Ike

Nehru Sees Hope For Ike, 'K' Session

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — India's Prime Minister Nehru still professed hope Monday for an Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting despite a notable lack of enthusiasm from either of the cold war camps.

Nehru told the United Nations that President Eisenhower "has not wholly rejected the idea."

He asked the General Assembly to pass the resolution he and four other neutral leaders have proposed, calling for Eisenhower to meet with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to ease world tensions.

"I have felt as if I was being buffeted by the icy winds of the cold war," the Indian leader said. "Coming from a warm country, I have shivered occasionally at these cold blasts."

Khrushchev, U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and other big-name delegates stayed in their seats for the 50-minute address by the spindly-legged Indian who carries enormous prestige in the world body.

Steps On Toes

Nehru stepped on both Western and Communist toes in his speech. Khrushchev applauded afterwards and called it "a very good speech." Herter applauded little and declined comment.

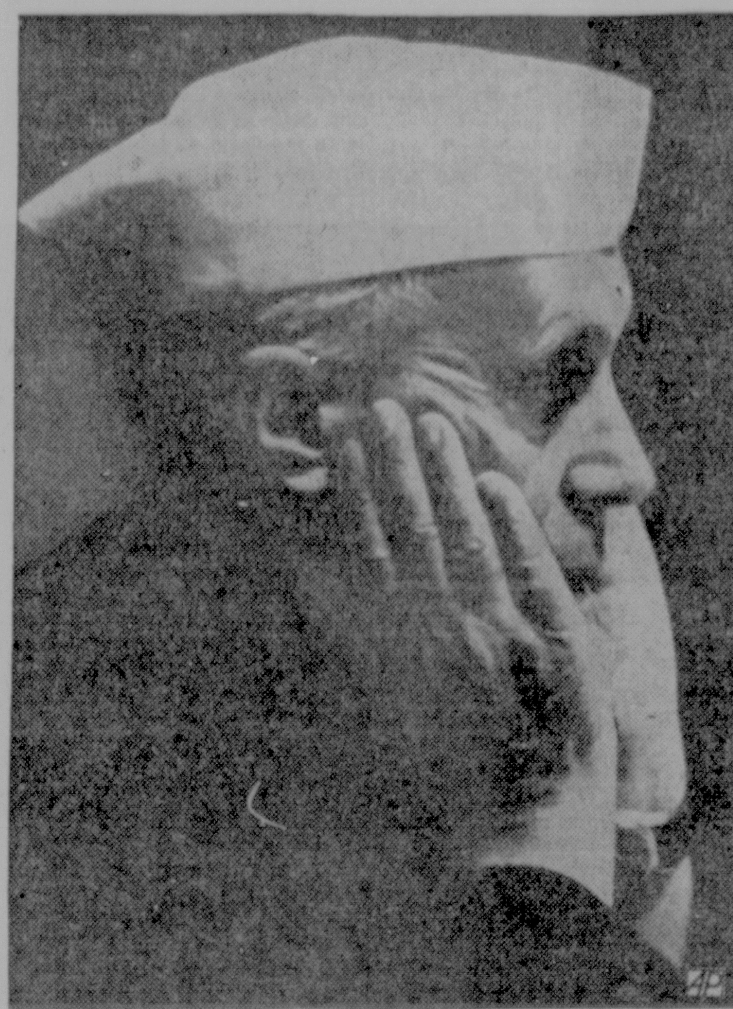

Khrushchev, who spoke ahead of Nehru, made no direct reference to the neutrals' plea or to Eisenhower's heavily qualified response.

The Soviet boss, however, did attack Eisenhower as a spokesman for "rotten colonialism" and denounced the idea that he and the President could reach agreement on disarmament if they were locked in a room. He said Eisenhower has shown no desire for agreement.

Eisenhower, who replied to the five neutrals Sunday, said he would meet with Khrushchev only if advance negotiations show that it would be fruitful. And he made plain he sees no sign of this now.

Nehru acknowledged that Eisenhower's letter "does not indicate that any contacts, such as we had recommended, are likely to take place in the near future."

But he said: "The door is still open for consideration, and the President has expressed his deep anxiety to help in the lessening of international tensions."

Wants President To Admit That U2 And RB47 Flights Were 'Treacherous Acts'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Monday night he will meet President Eisenhower provided that the United States admits that the flights of the U2 and the RB47 were "treacherous acts."

Khrushchev made the statements in a reply to five neutralist nations who introduced a resolution in the United Nations urging a personal meeting between him and Eisenhower.

Khrushchev repeated his charges that the flights of the U2 and RB47 constituted "flagrant violations" of Soviet territorial sovereignty. He continued, "The U.S. government repeatedly reaffirmed the said treacherous policy although this policy represents an unprecedented violation of the very foundation of international law."

'K' Meets Defiant Rebuff From Dag

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Premier Khrushchev mounted a powerful new offensive against Dag Hammarskjold Monday—and ran into a defiant rebuff from the U.N. secretary-general.

Khrushchev challenged Hammarskjold to resign. He also threatened to ignore U.N. peace-making machinery unless Hammarskjold's job is abolished and replaced by a three-man executive armed with veto powers.

Hammarskjold, to a tremendous ovation from most of the members in the 98-nation General Assembly, said it was not the big powers who need the U.N., but all the others.

He retorted in his fighting speech: "I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the organization, in the interests of all those other nations, as long as they (he stressed the word "they") wish me to do so."

Again Leads

Khrushchev once again led the Communist bloc delegations in a demonstration of table-thumping to signify protest, but the Soviet leader was smiling at the time.

The dramatic development came shortly after India's Prime Minister Nehru lent his powerful voice as an outstanding neutralist leader to defense of the present peace-making machinery.

The Indian leader also brushed aside Khrushchev's remarks cold-shouldering the possibility of a new meeting of the Soviet premier with President Eisenhower. Nehru said Eisenhower had not entirely rejected the idea.

But Australia suddenly proposed a new four-power summit conference as soon as practical as a substitute for the Eisenhower-

Take The Stage

Hammarskjold took the stage as the Assembly went into its afternoon session, and at once took exception to Khrushchev's challenge that he "muster up enough courage" to resign. Khrushchev has been attacking Hammarskjold heavily on the issue of his peace-making activities in the chaotic Congo, where Soviet policy has received setbacks.

"In this context, the representative of the Soviet Union spoke of courage," the secretary-general said. "It is very easy to resign; it is not easy to stay on. It is very easy to bow to the wish of a big power. It is another matter to resist."

Some U.N. delegates had expressed the opinion that Khrushchev's powerful attack would make it difficult for Hammarskjold to hang on.

The commission said it will look into the feasibility of improving or relocating the crossing, adding safeguards or eliminating it.

Three main Reading Railroad tracks and a secondary Pennsylvania Railroad track intersect the road which connects U. S. 422 and the old Reading Pike.

In Nigeria It Rains When A Gardner Predicts

By Jack Gelinas
LAGOS, NIGERIA (Less than a week before this country's independence)—We moved back to our house at 10 Ilabere Ave., two weeks ago, and sure enough, Amos, the gardener, was right about it raining before we moved in. In fact, it has been raining on and off nearly every day since. It's not good for the Independence celebration — and particularly not good for the decorations!

Could it possibly be that someone—somewhere—who for some reason doesn't like Nigeria has put the ju-ju on so that it will rain and ruin all the festivities, and in that way put the damper (no pun intended) on the Big Day, which is this Saturday? Don't laugh, because that's exactly what many people here are wondering right this minute. And it's not just the man in the street who's wondering and worrying either. The government is anxious as well. It was announced in today's newspapers that the Oba (king) of Lagos and deputy president of the Senate, paid-out the sum of $2,850 yesterday to a group of ju-ju men, who in return for the fee will be making ju-ju all this week and next in an effort to keep the rains away.

Also In News
The Oba was also in the news yesterday for having given a large Independence bonus to all the professional beggars of the city.

Probably one of the most interesting of the phenomena of the past week has been the unprecedented interest shown in the National Museum here in the capital city. . . . For the past month the number of visitors has been steadily increasing. Previous to this period of "seek identification with Nationalism" I doubt if more than a hundred people visited the museum in any given week, but by Sunday the 18th, the crowd was so great that police assistance was necessary, as the estimated size of the crowd was approaching between 15,000 and 20,000. Damage to the small museum gardens was considerable. The museum building itself is only about twice the size of The Stroud Mansion.

On Monday the main gates to the museum were closed and the side gates fixed ajar to allow people to enter in single file only. Even so the numbers were so great that the Director of Antiquities had to use a ladder to get in and out of his second floor office. And by yesterday the crowd had grown even larger. One of the newspapers took official count. The number at the close of the day: 25,742.

It was announced in the press this morning that "since it will be undesirable for overseas visitors to stand in lines which now exceed 300-yards, the museum will until further notice charge two shillings (28 cents) to all visitors. The announcement further added that "if this step doesn't control the numbers sufficiently there will be no alternative but to increase the charge."

No Slacking Off
There has been no slacking off and everyone is working at "something" that must be completed by Independence Day, October 1. Independence Fountain, which shoots water 40' into the air at a cost of nearly $100,000 was finished four days ago. Time it took to complete the job: two months and one day.

Giant banners and bunting of every description and color is still being hung and strung; some of the buildings from a distance look not unlike a huge Christmas gift, with the tinsel and ribbon and all. The cost of the decorations to the city: $427,000.

Another $2.42 million is being spent by the government on other phases and aspects of the celebrations: entertaining delegations from 45 countries (including Nelson Rockefeller); accommodations for press, motion pictures and TV representatives from 260 different media organizations throughout the world; government exhibits at the Independence Exhibition which opens on the 1st of October, with the promise of being the greatest fair ever held anywhere in Africa; and so on and so on.

It proves to be a very interesting week!

Dear Abby

Now Prove It!

Dear Abby: I am 19. I accepted a blind date with a soldier who was a buddy of my cousin's steady. This boy is nice. He's been through college and the air force. I decided that I would experiment with him since I would probably never see him again. I have a good reputation and have necked with boys, but that's all. Well, I let this one go farther than I should have. Not seriously far, but far enough so that I am terribly ashamed of myself.

I now find that I really like this boy and want him to know that I don't act that way with every other boy I go with. I wouldn't blame him if he thought I was cheap. But I am really not, Abby. How can I get him to believe and respect me?

"NICE"

Dear Nice: You can tell him what you told me, but don't blame him if he doesn't buy it right away. If you have the opportunity to see him again and again . . . earn his respect, and you'll get it. Actions speak louder than words.

Dear Abby: Before you condemn ALL "other women," please listen to my story. I was "the other woman" 6 years ago. I broke up a man's home and took him from his wife and 4 children and I didn't even know it. He not only lied to his wife about me — he lied to me about his wife. I didn't know until ten months after I married him (and we went together two years) that he was married when I met him. As you can guess, we aren't very happy. What woman could be, knowing she married the world's biggest liar?

LIAR'S WIFE

Dear Abby: I am 41 and have a wonderful family. I went only through the seventh grade because there were ten in our family and I had to quit school to help out.

I married a man who graduated from college. Now I am left way behind when we are with his business friends. I even feel ignorant when my children and their friends discuss things. Is there any way I can learn correct grammar and vocabulary at my age? No home course, please.

MRS. LEFT BEHIND
Dear Mrs. Left: Inquire into your local adult education classes. Older people with far less education than you have picked up the thread of learning where they dropped it years ago. All you need is the desire to learn — and you have that.

Dear Abby: My hubby and I have been married almost 25 years with no major problems. We've been disagreeing over something for a long time. Do you bite into an ice cream cone with your teeth — or do you lick the ice cream? This debate always starts reworks in our family.

ICE CREAM CONE FANCIER
Dear I.C.C. Fancier: Stand outside an ice cream cone parlor for awhile. I think you'll see more tongues than teeth.

Cuban Workers Take Over U. S.-Owned Nickel Plant

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban workers have taken over operation of the $110-million, U.S.-owned Nickel-nickel-processing plant in Oriente Province. The United States announced last Thursday it was closing down the plant because of harassment and confiscatory taxes imposed by Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

The move by the workers was viewed as a preliminary to outright seizure of the big installation. A report from the plant said Cuban employes "are voluntarily continuing normal operations until the government determines what measures to take."

In the past, government seizure has followed what the Castro regime termed "abandonment" of an operation by the owners.

Remaining American residents in Cuba no longer ask if there will be a break in U.S.-Cuban relations. They now ask, "When will it come?"

RAMBLER ANNOUNCES STRONGEST GUARANTEE IN AUTO HISTORY

LIFETIME GUARANTEE ON NEW CERAMIC-ARMORED MUFFLER AND TAIL-PIPE STANDARD ON ALL '61 MODELS

Born of space-age developments, Rambler announces on all 1961 models a new Ceramic-Armored muffler and tail-pipe guaranteed against defects for the lifetime of the car while in the hands of the original owner. This covers total replacement cost including parts and labor. Every '61 Rambler muffler and tail-pipe is completely covered with a special ceramic coating—similar to that used in rockets and missiles—to give lasting protection against rust and corrosion caused by water, salt and acids. Another Rambler first!

12-MONTH, 12,000-MILE WARRANTY EXTENDED TO ALL NEW RAMBLER OWNERS

Now Rambler extends to all new Rambler owners its comprehensive full-year or 12,000-mile warranty, whichever occurs first. In fact, this liberal warranty, announced to dealers more than a year ago, also covers total replacement cost including parts and labor. It applies to all 1961 Rambler models and to 1960 Ramblers still within the warranty period. The normal industry warranty covers only 90 days or 4,000 miles.

County Inks New Planning Application

MONROE COUNTY Commissioners signed a new application for planning of the Broadheads Creek Water Shed, south of Canadensis.

Yesterday the commissioners received a letter from State Conservationist Ivan McKeever in which he stated, "The work plan on one section would have to be completed before another could be started."

The commissioners divided the original plan to get action and with the understanding that the action would not affect the project. With this as the plan both sections, north and south of Canadensis would benefit from protection.

McKeever also said that when the present work is completed his office would be receptive to new proposals.

Other Business
In other business of the board the letter of resignation of Mrs. Claire Sniffen, RN, was read and accepted. Mrs. Sniffen has been employed at the Monroe County Home, near Snyder'sville.

The board also directed that a letter be sent to Sheriff Altomero stating that the county would not send deputy sheriffs to the West End Fair Association. The handling of traffic there will be handled by Pennsylvania State Police.

Charles Haney, county home superintendent, also reported that the two recently purchased stoves had been delivered and installed in the home.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Fellowship Commission reports that questionable campaign literature, mostly of a religious nature, has appeared in the Philadelphia area.

Meanwhile, Walter E. Alessandrini, U.S. attorney for eastern Pennsylvania, warned that literature concerning federal candidates is covered by federal statutes which will be enforced vigorously.

Alessandrini sent notices Saturday to Republican and Democratic chairmen in Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lehigh, Montgomery, Northampton, Philadelphia and Schuylkill counties. He asked the chairmen to inform party workers of the law so that infractions brought to their attention might be reported to his office.

In 1957, he rose to general attorney and head of the legal department and in 1958 was appointed general counsel and an officer of the Company. Gavin is also a director of the Safe Harbor Water Power Corporation which is owned jointly by PP&L and the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company.

Gavin's PP&L career was interrupted by four-and-one-half years of duty with the U.S. Army during World War II. He served three years in the South Pacific, participating in three major campaigns and was awarded the Silver Star and Purple Heart medals.

A native of Schwenksville, Gavin was graduated from Ursinus College in 1930 and from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1933. Before joining the PP&L legal staff, he served as junior counsel for the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue and was law clerk for Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice H. Edgar Barnes.

Bangor Authority Sets Up Salaries

BANGOR — Monthly salaries for members of Bangor's Sewer Authority were set by Bangor Borough Council at its meeting last night.

Council approved salaries of $20 monthly, effective from October, 1960, to April, 1962, for the five authority members. They are Ray E. Young, chairman; Louis Trigiani, vice chairman; Ralph Houck, treasurer; Millard Gleim, secretary, and Arlington Houck.

Council was informed by members of the sewer committee that the authority will set salaries for officers for additional compensation. No statement as to how much these salaries will be was announced.

Council gave authority to Charles Chamberlain, street committee chairman, and Quintus LaBar, burgess, to begin negotiations with the State Highway Dept. to switch a surface water drainage project from Eighth and Chestnut Sts. to S. Main St. and Ridge Ave.

Considered Feasible
This switch was considered feasible because the borough is currently constructing storm sewers in the Eighth and Chestnut Sts. area.

Council announced its intention to advertise for bids for a new traffic signal to be erected at First and Market Sts. and plans for several street lighting changes in the borough by the Metropolitan Edison Co. were announced.

Walter Warrick, chairman of the sewer committee, said a plumbers' code for the borough will be ready by the November or December meeting for Council's consideration.

He urged Council to put the code into effect and name a plumbing inspector before January of next year.

Samuel Hicks, chairman of the safety committee, was introduced to meet with representatives of the Bangor Water Co. relative to improving service in several sections of the borough.

Council was informed by the company that it has applied to the Public Utility Commission for permission to increase its rates in the borough by 30 percent by Jan. 1 of next year.

Suggest Meeting
Councilmen John Cascioli and William Holland suggested and Council approved a meeting with the water company's officials to discuss the increase. It will be held Oct. 17.

The law committee, borough engineer and borough solicitor were instructed to negotiate land exchanges on proposed Route 90 with J. H. Beers and Anthony Cappozzello.

John Swartz, representing the Northampton County Motor Club, presented an award to the borough for the sixth consecutive year for having no pedestrian deaths.

Poe Story Is Slated For Grand

Edgar Allan Poe's "House of Usher" was considered by the great author his finest story. American International has brought it to the screen with Vincent Price starred as Roderick Usher, Mark Damon as Philip, Myrna Fahey as Madeleine Usher, and Harry Ellerbe as Bristol.

Producer-director Roger Corman has managed to squeeze out the last drop of suspense and terror from the famous Poe classic and the result is a motion picture masterpiece of the macabre. All the chills, thrills, lurking danger, fear of the unknown conjured up by Poe are here and they build scene by scene to a mighty climax.

Vincent Price, whose suave characterizations of maniacal killers and whose distinctive good looks give him an air of authority in whatever role, is perfectly cast as Roderick, last of the ill-fated Usher line. Myrna Fahey as his sister, Mark Damon as her fiancé.

The unusual film will open at the Grand Theatre tomorrow.

Listed Day Of Prayer

PRESIDENT Eisenhower has designated Wednesday of this week as a National Day of Prayer and called upon all citizens to observe it.

The designation is the result of a joint resolution approved by Congress in 1952 which provides the President "shall set aside and proclaim a suitable day each year, other than a Sunday, as a National Day of Prayer, on which the people of the United States may turn to God in prayer and meditation."

More Than 20 Years

More than one dispatch to this newspaper has made mention that we are now passing through the 20th anniversary of that brave, bitter and decisive struggle known to history as the Battle of Britain.

A few months ago similar note was taken of another grim fight, the Battle of France. For those who are anniversary minded, we are now entered upon a great series of 20-year commemorations, for in the months and years ahead we shall have occasion to be reminded that it is two decades since Pearl Harbor, since the North African invasion, since D-Day, since the liberation of Paris, since Guadalcanal and the Battle of Midway, yes, even since Stalingrad.

Twenty years is a good period in which to gain in perspective. Dumas, in his "Vingt Ans Apres," chose it as the interval in which to take a second look at the affairs of the Three Musketeers. Yet though there are episodes and even policies which may seem regrettable in retrospect, the general evaluation of the place of World War II in history has changed but little. Certainly it has not been followed by the cynicism and bitterness that were so widespread after World War I, for instance. Today, when we remember the Battle of France we think of the awesome tragedy that befell the first Western power that lay in Hitler's path. When we think of the Battle of Britain we recall, and still celebrate, the staunchness of those air-men whose shoulders, to use the words of A. E. Housman, "held the sky suspended."

Today in a time of confusion and perplexity, we might do well to remember those great years, and draw upon their steadfastness and purposefulness. Tasks which then seemed almost impossible were accomplished; needs that seemed endless were satisfied.

As we look now upon the cliffs of Dover, still tranquil and sunlit, we can remember trials overcome and conquered as great as any we face today. That knowledge ought to make us clear-eyed and confident as we meet the challenges ahead.

$92,000 For What?

On the question of economy in government, you usually see Republicans gaily squeezing Democrats in the political vise of public opinion.

However, Pennsylvania Democrats appear to have turned the tables in the argument over the dull, do-nothing session of the legislature.

Democrats contend that the stand-by session of the 1960 legislature has unnecessarily cost the taxpayers $92,000 in travel expenses, printing costs and payroll.

Republicans contended that by adjourning the legislature they would not be able to keep check on state finances and the Lawrence administration.

Was the $92,000 expense justified?

George Sokolsky Says . . .

How Does It Happen?

Czeslaw Milosz, it is reported, has been engaged by the University of California, as a lecturer in the Slavic Department for the coming year. He was due to start teaching on September 19, but there has been some delay because of difficulties with the State Department.

Milosz was formerly a Cultural Attaché at the Polish Embassy in Washington. He defected in 1951 and wants to remain in the United States. Usually when a man is a defector, on either side, his defection is marked by a statement of the reasons therefore and an assertion of his devotion to the country to which he defects.

There is no record that Milosz has done anything of the sort. Instead, Milosz's attitude is that Western culture is decadent and offers no hope. It would seem that while Milosz likes to live here, he does not think much of the country or its people.

More interesting is Samuel Shapiro who taught as a Fulbright Professor in the Fulbright Institute in 1959. He is now an Assistant Professor of History at Michigan State University where he will be a member of a Latin American Area Program.

Shapiro recently had published ed in "The New Republic" an article, entitled "Cuba — a Disingenuous Report." This is a pro-Castro article. One of his assertions is that our former Ambassador, Earl E. T. Smith, owed his appointment to John Hay Whitney, a large stockholder in Freeport Sulphur. So Shapiro says:

"... One of the new ambassador's first acts was to negotiate a substantial tax reduction for Freeport's Cuban subsidiary, the Moa Bay Mining Company. Thereafter Smith accepted all of Batista's promises about civil liberty and free elections at face value, and persistently misinformed Washington about the situation in Cuba."

Smith says that this is a false statement. In fact, the State Department issued a formal statement:

"... negotiations were completed in July 1957, before Ambassador Smith's arrival in Cuba, and the subsequent decree granting the concessions was published in August 1957." This is what Shapiro says about free elections in Cuba:

"... Now, however, (Castro) says that Cuba already has a 'direct democracy,' that the huge crowds he can call into the streets are sufficient proof of popular backing, that 'we don't need elections, because the people support me anyway.'"

"This, of course, is what dictatorial regimes have said before; but let us be frank: there is no great demand for elections in Cuba today. The political history of the island, like that of almost every other country in Latin America, is one of graft, vote-buying, and violence, 'absolutism' tempered by assassination.' From 1902 to 1934 the United States exercised a veto power (through the Platt Amendment sanctioning military intervention in Cuba) that made Cuban elections essentially meaningless; for 25 years after that the U. S. acquiesced in electoral pandemonium that left the same little group of Army officers, crooked politicians, and businessmen in power. Today, the crowds chant rhythmically at meeting, 'Elecciones, por que?' (Elections? What for?)"

On the subject of Communism, Shapiro writes:

"So much nonsense has been written about the question of Cuba and Communism that one almost despairs of getting at the truth. Part of the trouble lies in the careless use of words. To some, a Communist is one who belongs to a Communist Party and who works for the worldwide success of the movement headed by Nikita Khrushchev and-or Mao Tse-tung. To Batista and his men, and to Ambassadors Gardner and Smith, any person who wanted to overthrow the existing Cuban government was a Communist. The angry Matanzas landlaid ... considered Fidel Castro a Communist because he took land without paying for it. A great many American newspaper publishers and government officials believe that anyone who is hostile to American business interests is a Communist. To complicate matters further, there are all the other imprecisely-used words thrown around more or less as synonyms: 'leftist,' 'extremist,' 'fellow-traveler,' 'Marxist,' 'revolutionary,' 'red-lining,' 'crypto-Communist,' and so on."

Then follows a rather long discussion in which Shapiro says that the Cuban Revolution is essentially Marxist but on the subject of Communism, he seems to wander about the bush. However, just a few moments before I wrote this piece I saw Fidel Castro try to answer this same question on television. He was asked whether he was a Communist. He talked much but he did not say, No!

Inside You And Yours

Vaccination Baseball

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.
"How can you say I'm not vaccinated?" demanded the young soldier.

"You vaccinated me yourself — three times in the last two months!"

He didn't know that smallpox vaccinations are a sort of medical baseball game.

Smallpox vaccination has changed little in 200 years since it was discovered. Doctors still vaccinate with live cowpox virus (or a virus very much like it) and expect that after the patient recovers from this one-blister "cowpox" infection, he'll be immune to smallpox.

In vaccination baseball, the doctor-patient team plays against the virus variety.

Vaccine Baseball

Their baseball is a drop of vaccine and the doctor bats with a small blunt needle instead of a Louisville Slugger. He gently presses the needle through a drop of vaccine placed on the patient's arm. The arm shouldn't hurt or bleed.

Besides playing on the team, the doctor has to umpire the game and keep score. He has to see whether he's made a home run, a strike or a foul tip.

Home Run

The doctor should really belt the ball over the fence for a home run, if the patient's never been vaccinated before. Although the doctor "hits the ball," the vaccination runs for him and it can take its time trotting around the bases.

After about five days, it reaches first base; the arm turns red and a small blister appears.

Later Developments

Rounding second, the blister grows, while the skin around it becomes hard and swollen. At third, the blister breaks and oozes while the patient feels sick and feverish.

Finally, after about three weeks, the vaccination returns to home plate, the scab which has formed falls off and the patient once again feels well.

After this home run — called "primary take" — the patient should be immune to smallpox for five years.

Proceeds Faster

If the patient's been vaccinated before, the doctor can still bat out a home run, but the vaccination rounds the bases a lot faster. It races through the various stages in only seven to ten days. These home runs, called "accelerated reactions," also protect the patient for five years.

At times, even though the doctor vaccinates properly, no redness develops and no blister forms to ooze and scab. Here, even though the doctor has struck at the ball, he didn't score a hit.

Didn't Work

Baseball fans call this a strike; doctors call it "no take." "No take" means the vaccination didn't work. It doesn't mean the patient is immune.

All hits in vaccination baseball are home runs and no vaccination can round the bases in less than a week.

Occasionally, a vaccination which at first looks like a hit turns out to be a foul ball or "immune" reaction. The redness, swelling and blister which develop because of allergy, disappear after a day or so.

No Better

The doctor-umpire has to call this foul ball a strike. "Immune" reactions are no better than "no takes."

The vaccination-baseball inning isn't over until the doctor has scored a home run and the patient is vaccinated. Don't complain if the doctor wants to keep vaccinating you or yours after repeated no takes.

In the Korean War, several vaccinated American soldiers died of smallpox. Someone had made the error of assuming that their repeated "no takes," or immune reactions, meant smallpox protection. They lost the game of vaccination baseball — the final score, no runs, no hits, one error.

Space Budget Increase

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The new President taking office in January, regardless of who he is, is already certain of having to decide on a crucial space problem.

Neither presidential candidate has yet been told about it, but the National Aeronautics & Space Administration has concluded that its next budget should be increased from $50 to 100 percent over the $916 million Congress voted this year.

Two separate budgets proposing such huge boosts have been submitted by NASA authorities to President Eisenhower. Whatever he does about them, the final decision will rest with his successor — who is certain to make extensive revisions in the budget the President will send to the new Congress before quitting office, January 20.

That's what Eisenhower did

The Pennsylvania Story

Tactically Different

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — It may be perhaps a bit of a paradox — but while Republicans and Democrats are shooting for the same victory goal in Pennsylvania next month — each is going about it in a tactically different direction.

This in itself underscores a transition that has been taking place on the Pennsylvania political scene during the past few years.

It is a move — or rather a series of moves — party strategists themselves have had little to do with. Force of circumstance has "called the shot" more than anything else.

A close look at the campaign now under way in the Keystone State will show these two points:

1. Republican campaigners for office in Pennsylvania — seats, State Auditor General, State Treasurer, and even candidates for local legislative seats — in great degree have based campaign strategy on the presidential candidacy of Mr. Nixon.

There are extremely few exceptions to this rule of thumb strategy. These will be found on the legislative level and even so, are few and far between.

2. Democratic candidates for the same offices throughout the state have been following a somewhat different tactic — centering their pitch heavily on statewide and local issues rather than so heavily on the presidential candidacy of Mr. Kennedy.

This of course does not reflect a dislike for Mr. Kennedy as a candidate, nor does it question his abilities. It is nothing more than a strategic move — dictated by circumstance.

Few perhaps realize it but it is an almost complete about-face from the tactical trend of the two parties in the Keystone State in the past quarter century.

From the days of the Rooseveltian era of the early 1930's until the advent of the Eisenhower Administration it had been accepted standard procedure to link local campaigns with the presidential race.

With Democrats in the minority in the Pennsylvania legislature it was regarded by top party leaders as an "only hope" course.

On the other hand, dogged by minority representation on the national level but riding as the majority party on the state level, followed the exact opposite course.

With these conditions reversed today, state strategies have followed a similar reverse — but for different reasons.

Pennsylvania Republicans, had they retained their majority status in the 1954 and 1958 gubernatorial elections, today undoubtedly would place equal emphasis on local-national issues.

The Democratic wins of 1954 and 1958, GOP party leaders concede, not only knocked them out as the "reigning party" in Pennsylvania but also shot their local and state organizations to pieces.

It is admitted that any "Nixon pull" is their basic hope for victory November 8.

Democrats of the state on the other hand have the distinct advantage of an a-building organization, hopped up in most cases with newborn enthusiasm on the local front unmatched by the GOP.

With a Democratic administration in office here in Harrisburg and issues of their own to talk about for once, the centering of effort in the Democratic camp quite definitely has been on state and local points — with the presidential factor actually of a somewhat secondary nature.

Democrats feel it is their best hope of neutralizing any strong GOP pull from Washington.

Mr. Editor:

Who is to blame for Stroud Union High School's many failures to have championship teams in our school's program? Come on, you past football players and basketball players! Is it politics or rank school boards handling something they don't want or do want—Defeat?

Go down the list of past coaches and you will find how many championship teams were produced. Why can't we have a high rating of sports in our school? Why was our last coach pushed out by School Board members? Don't tell me a coach with a near championship team gave the excuse he was tired of coaching. Let's get the facts straight before the public.

Do we have sport minded officials in the business end of our School? I, for one, would say a big NO and I am sure of that. Do we have a one-man board of sports? Pay the price for a much needed coach at this time? Did that past graduate from the hard knocks of football and basketball say (a-men). Yes, I am sure he did because he can back up every word he may speak on that subject.

Let's take a poll of the games played this year under the coaching of the staff. Three years can't be enough time for some coaches it seems to even give our school a high-rating team. Oh, No, pardner. I remember how long our coaches stayed on at the school. What is the answer to so many failures? Don't tell me the boys going into the games are cowards. Oh, no Pardner, I have watched the teams of the past and I defy anyone to blame the boys, who were in there playing their hearts out for their Alma Mater. Don't softsoap an issue that has been before the public so long. My hat is off to any boy who has the courage to take the gaff that I know is handed out to them by coaches who couldn't play as good in their own school years.

We the taxpayers look forward to seeing sports of the highest rank in our schools. We sure pay enough taxes for twenty good coaches. How much of an I.Q. rating is required for football players. Did our one man school board member give the coach such a high rating that a former coach couldn't compete.

Let's take such actions that we need so urgently: to vote sport minded and impartial men or women to our school board. Yes, I mean the women, who are leaders and the backbone of every football player. Take away the business manager's right to interfere in the sports program of our schools. Place the blame where it most belongs.

We want a school of the same high quality of academic credits as our school maintains year after year; a school with students so full of courage and hope that they will give their all in sports. Where the players do not know the meaning of the word defeat.

A coach is made by a winning team and a coach whips in 1953 to the budget he inherited from former President Truman.

These unannounced budgets as drafted by Dr. Homer Stewart, NASA planning director, are:

$1.4 billion, approximately 50 percent more than the current budget, to speed up most of the existing space programs, but adding no new ones. Under this budget there would be around 25 major satellite launches, four of them to put a man in orbit. This year's budget calls for 21 satellite "shots," but that schedule is so far behind that it will not be completed by next June 30.

$2 billion, a 100 percent budget increase, for both speeding up the space programs already underway and adding important new ones. Foremost among them would be a number of new satellites for a total of 40 launches next fiscal year, and Project Apollo to send a manned spaceship to the moon between 1965 and 1970.

Under this budget, $300 million would be allocated for initial tests of a space vehicle designed to carry a three-man crew, first into orbit, and later to the moon.

Space Sales Tax — In presenting these greatly increased alternate NASA budgets, Dr. Stewart bluntly warned the U.S. must be prepared to spend "about $30 billion" on space programs in the next 10 years to meet Russia's aggressive competition in this supremely vital sphere.

"To spend less," he declared, "would mean we would have to abandon our plans for sustained manned-space flights. For our own and the free world's security we cannot afford to do that. The risk and possible consequences would be too great."

To pay this stupendous cost, Treasury officials are discussing a special "space sales tax."

No details are available. But the matter has been broached to both President Eisenhower and members of the congressional space committee. To the latter, the unique "space sales tax" has been explained as based on a patriotic appeal similar to the World War II "victory tax."

Project Mercury — This country's current manned space flight program, is estimated by Dr. Stewart to cost more than $350 million by next June 30. In contrast, the cost of Project Apollo is put at more than three times that — $1.2 billion.

Space Schedule — Another moon shot will be attempted by NASA before the end of this year. It will be the eighth in that so far-unsuccessful program . . . Also on NASA's schedule are four Redstone and Atlas missile launches as part of Project Mercury. One of them will be for the purpose of hurling a "dummy astronaut" to a height of 125 miles and a distance of more than 200 miles. Other shots will include monkeys in recoverable space capsules. All these tests will take place at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., missile center . . . Also slated by the end of this year are a Tiros weather satellite, and two satellites for ionosphere measurements.

The Countdown — Dr. T. Keith Glennan, head of NASA, is definitely quitting in January. He is telling assistants he has decided on that regardless of the outcome of the presidential election. NASA has control over all non-military space projects, such as satellites, moon shots, deep space probes and various other projects not connected with weapons. The agency is also in charge of the highly important project to develop a 1.5 million pound thrust rocket engine . . . There are 101 different federal agencies involved in the missile and space programs. They include departments, councils, committees, advisory groups, etc., etc., etc. Much has been said about simplifying this vast bureaucratic system, but little has been done about it so far.

that team into the highest sports bracket. How many years will pass until a well paid coach is hired without the cut and dried form of politics in the hands of a school-board which is not sports-minded.

I believe the Stroud Union Schools sports program is still in the old horse and buggy days and in ruts of the old dirt roads. Clean out the ruts with a sports program that we can be proud of.

Keep the trophy display cases filled to the brim with championship cups.

Well, pardners, for a more sports minded school board, sound off your views because I hope to see and live long enough to hear the Stroud Union High School hailed as the new undefeated champions of basketball, football, track and a well-paid coach or coaches who have the courage to tell any intruders, "Hands off of my teams!"

A sports-minded addict, who isn't a dope.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The next best thing to traveling abroad is to be able to look at your own country with fresh eyes. Driving home from State College I was reminded of our many summer drives through the Italian countryside when I was looking at everything so hard that my senses swam.

There's no reason you can't do the same thing at home, I reminded myself. Just because you've fallen into the habit of looking for nothing but route markers, a break in the solid white line where you can pass the car ahead, and speed limit signs is no reason you have to keep on doing it.

And yet, if you were describing this countryside for an Italian, for instance, route markers, white lines and speed limits would all be news. Very few roads in Europe have numbers; they have names, repeated on every little gravestone-like kilometer marker and on the red houses which mark the homes of the caretakers for that particular stretch, sort of like our road supervisors.

There are no white lines so when you are passing a car or rounding a blind curve you blow the horn like mad. And of course there are no speed limits, you just go as fast as you can; and no guideposts to keep you from plunging down embankments if you should be so foolish as to drive off the road.

But these things are merely the mechanics of a drive. There would be news for them in the countryside itself, which is at once softer and less disciplined than Southern Europe. We have hills, gently rounded and softened with trees, instead of stern, bare and forbidding mountains. Even our trees are undisciplined, sprouting branches all over instead of the clean-cut lines of umbrella pines looking as if they'd been pruned. Underneath, the underbrush grows so thick and tangled that you can't see through a thicket.

And our roadsides are ragged with sumac and goldenrod and standing weeds instead of planted with oleanders and the grass clipped short for hay, the bushes for twigs. Even our fields would surprise them: the corn still standing brown and rattling in the wind instead of being gathered and the land already plowed for another crop; some fields lying fallow; others filled with grazing cattle; mute evidence of land to spare.

So would our farmhouses, each standing in its own acres, self-contained and self-sufficient, and looking strangely deserted with the family inside instead of gathered by the front door for sewing or talking or washing clothes or fixing dinner.

But what nobody could describe to somebody who had never seen it is the way the countryside looks now across the upper reaches of the Pocono Plateau, blazing with scar-

Tip-off: Orange Sauce on gingerbread or cake makes a handsome, delicious dessert for family and company. Dressed up here for company the gingerbread was baked in a ring mold, center filled with the colorful sauce and a few orange slices used for garnish. The gingerbread may be made also in a pan and cut in squares. It's good served hot with cold sauce. You'll like the sauce on most any kind of unfrosted cake, and with that bit left over make Fruited Orange Sundaes.

Fruited Orange Sauce On Gingerbread
1 pkg. gingerbread mix 1 cup orange juice
2/3 cup sugar 1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) fruit cocktail
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated orange Orange sections (optional)

Prepare gingerbread following package directions. Pour into a greased and floured 6-cup ring mold. (Or use a deep cake or loaf pan.) Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) about 30 minutes, until done. Let stand 10 minutes, loosen from pan and invert on cake rack to cool. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Add orange rind and juice & 1/2 cup syrup drained from fruit cocktail, mixing until smooth. Cook until thickened and clear, stirring. Add lemon juice and drained fruit cocktail; chill. Put gingerbread on serving plate and fill center with fruit sauce. Garnish with orange sections, if desired. Eight to ten servings.

Sometimes Back Door Can Open On Success

By Anne Heywood

Many times it is necessary to take a back door into a field. This is particularly true, I think, for the housewife.

I know a woman who wanted very much to be an interior decorator. She had taken a few courses after school, but then she settled down into being a wife and mother.

When the children were in school, the desire to be an interior decorator reared its head again — this time much more strongly.

But she did not have anything like the necessary training, and none of her city's department stores or interior decorators would consider hiring her. It would have been totally out of the question for her to go back and do all the required studying, since along with her desire to be a decorator was a family need for additional money.

Didn't Give Up

A good many women in this situation would have given up and gone in for perpetual complaining about how the cards were stacked against them. But she decided that if she could not be an interior decorator, she could at least be working in the same general area.

Because she had always liked working with her hands, she began to make hooked rugs. She had an excellent sense of color and design, and some of her rugs were remarkably good-looking.

Made Small Rugs

She concentrated on small ones for entrance foyers, in the beginning, and after she had done her own, she made them for friends and relatives, usually for presents.

She used her imagination and selected not only a color but a general theme and flavor that reflected the house and its occupants.

Then the same thing happened that happens so often in cases of this kind.

If you are longing to enter a field for which you do not have the proper training, do not give up — do a good reconnaissance job and see if you can't find a back door or side door or some sneaky way of getting into the field.

Poet-Anthologist Guest At Opening Dutch Treat Dinner

The local Dutch Treat Club will open its year's programs by presenting one of the great names in contemporary literature, Louis Untermeyer at their dinner meeting on Thursday night at 7 at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The famous poet, editor, critic and anthologist has some 50 volumes to his credit. Among his anthologies which have become classics are "A Treasury of Great Poems" and "A Treasury of Laughter." His "Book of Living Verse" was hailed as the logical successor to "The Oxford Book of English Verse."

He was chosen to write the article on modern American poetry for the Encyclopedia, and his book "Modern American and British Poetry" has been adopted as a standard text in virtually all schools and colleges throughout America.

Best known among his books of original verse is "Selected Poems and Parodies." His latest book, "Makers of the Modern World" is a book of biographies of the writers, artists, scientists, statesmen and philosophers who have helped to shape the pattern of the world today.

Untermeyer turned his full time to writing at the age of 37 after rising from office boy to manager of a jewelry manufacturing plant in New Jersey. During World War II, he left his farm in the Adirondacks to join the Office of War Information as expert in publications and as originator of many radio programs sent by short wave overseas.

Early in 1944, he was transferred to what was perhaps the largest publication venture ever attempted in the United States, the non-profit Armed Services Edition which provided the Army and Navy with a total of six million books every thirty days.

Tom Waring, president, will preside at the dinner meeting. Anyone wishing to join the group is asked to consult the secretary, Mrs. Eric Schuchard early in the week for memberships and reservations.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Michaels, Mrs. Thomas Bonstar, Mrs. Robert Tabler and Mrs. Ernest George.

Law And Ditmar In Opener

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh's Vernon Law and New York's Art Ditmar, a pair of veteran right-handers, were confirmed Monday as the starting pitchers in the first game of the 1960 World Series between the Pirates and Yankees, starting here Wednesday.

Both camps breathed optimism. Danny Murawski, serious-minded manager of the Pirates, predicted a Pittsburgh victory because "we beat the best in a tougher league."

"We're loose; we're not frightened; we'll show the Yankees we won the pennant." Casey Stengel, wise old pilot of the Yankees, in his best brand of double talk, had this to say: "My writers tell me we got the momentum, which is supposed to give us some kind of psychological edge. I dunno about that but if it means we can stretch our 15 straight to 19 straight then I say agree because that's what I told my players."

Stengel was referring to the Yankees' blazing finish which produced victories in their last 15 regular season games.

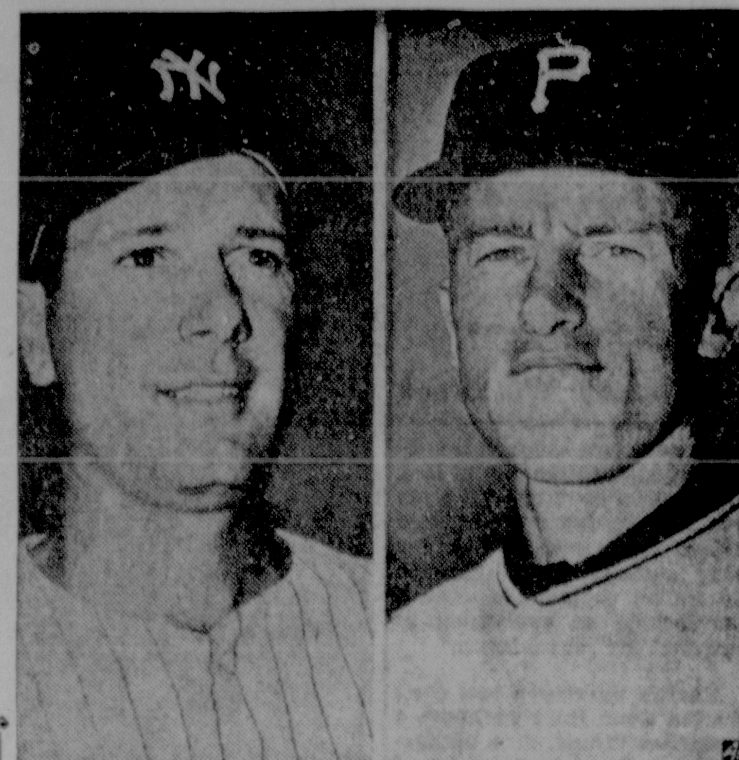

The odds-makers have made the Yankees 13 to 10 favorites and even money in the first game. Here are the probable opening day lineups and batting orders:

New York Pittsburgh
Tony Kubek, ss Bill Virdon, cf
Hector Lopez, lf Dick Groat, ss
Roger Maris, rf Bob Skinner, lf
Mickey Mantle, cf Dick Stuart, 1b
Bill Skowron, 1b Bob Clumte, rf
Yogi Berra, c Smokey Burgess, c
Cletis Boyer, 3b Don Hoak, 3b
Bob Redson, 2b Bill Mazar, 2b

Art Ditmar, p Vernon Law, p
Ditmar, the Yankees' top winner with a 15-9 record, worked out Monday and said, "I'm ready." His last outing was Friday night with a four-inning tune-up against Boston.

Law, whose 20-9 is the best pitching record on the Pirates, also did some throwing Monday and declared the right ankle, which he sprained slightly last week, was fully mended. He, too, pitched Friday and was raked for 10 hits in 2 2-3 innings by Milwaukee. This was attributed to the fact that he hadn't pitched in eight days.

Game time is 1 p.m. EST. Partly sunny and cool weather with no rain is predicted. A capacity crowd of some 38,000 is assured. All games will be televised nationally.

A Look Around The State At High School Football

By FRED B. WALTERS
HARRISBURG (AP) — Many a Pennsylvania high school football team has stamped itself as a top contender for sectional honors as the 1960 season turns into October. Here's a random sampling, bearing in mind that several other potentially strong teams haven't been tested:

EAST
Ridley Twp. — The Townshipers having disposed of tough Norristown and Berwick on successive weekends, there's little doubt this club is one of the best in the northeast.

West Scranton — With victories over Swoyersville, Allentown, Allen and Berwick on successive weekends, there's little doubt this club is one of the best in the northeast.

Pottsville — The resurging Schuylkill County team has won its first four impressively. Its games against Mount Carmel, Berwick and Hazleton on successive weekends later in the season should settle the question just how a good team it is.

Among the others, Norristown, Conestoga, Nesheim, Central Bucks, North Penn, Easton, Berwick, Minersville, Coal Township, Hazleton, Mount Carmel, West Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, GAR, Wilkes-Barre, Sayre and Kingston Catholic rank among the better teams off the first few weekends' results.

MIDSTATE:
Lancaster — Until somebody proves otherwise, the defending Central Penn champs have to be considered about the best in the area. They haven't been beaten since 1958.

Danville — This is a good team, with three impressive victories behind it. The toughest part of its schedule may be ahead, particularly the Lock Haven game on Oct. 28.

Lock Haven — Observers who have seen this year's club rate it tops, possibly unbeatable by anyone.

NFL Player Draft Listed For Dec. 27
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's player draft will be held on Dec. 27, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Monday.

The site will be the city in which the Dec. 26 championship game will be played. If a playoff game is necessary on Dec. 26th, the draft will be held on the 27th in the city in which the playoff is held.

Lavagetto Pilots Senators In '61
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto agreed to contract terms and will manage the Washington Senators again in 1961, President Calvin Griffith announced Monday night. This put an end to rumors that Lavagetto would go to the San Francisco Giants as manager.

No figures were announced, but it was believed that Lavagetto will receive $30,000, an increase of $7,000.

Carry Back Wins Cowdin Stakes
NEW YORK (AP) — Katherine Price's Carry Back came surging out of the pack in mid stretch and won the 38th running of the Cowdin Stakes at Belmont Park Monday.

The 2-year-old son of Saggy Joppy, ridden by Bill Hartack, stepped the seven furlongs in 1:24, in scoring by a length and a half over Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster.

Harbor View Farm's Garwol was third.

Joe Gordon Leaves Tigers High And Dry By Quitting

By JERRY GREEN
DETROIT (AP) — Joe Gordon left the Detroit Tigers high and dry Monday by quitting as manager and the Kansas City Athletics said they would talk to him about succeeding the fired Bob Elliott.

The Athletics dismissed Elliott, their manager for only one season, a few hours after Gordon dropped his resignation bomb in the lap of Tiger President Bill Dewitt.

Parke Carroll, general manager of the Athletics, said he intends to discuss the Kansas City managerial job with Gordon during the World Series, starting Wednesday at Pittsburgh.

Dewitt, who swung a sensational managerial swap two months ago to bring Gordon to Detroit while sending Jimmie Dykes to manage Cleveland, said he knew nothing of Gordon's plan to quit until this morning. Gordon was released from his Detroit contract which ran through the 1961 season.

Carroll said he had talked with Dewitt about Gordon's release. "I explained to Dewitt," Carroll said, "that a Kansas City group is negotiating for the purchase of the club and it has been agreed that it will be consulted on certain matters relating to future plans. Naturally the 1961 manager was discussed. Four or five men were mentioned who would be acceptable."

"Unknown to the Athletics, Gordon talked to a representative of the Kansas City group during Detroit's visit last weekend. Earlier, Gordon denied that he was headed for Kansas City as manager."

"I have resigned at Detroit and am seeking employment," Gordon told newsmen in Canton, Ohio, after he fled Detroit, dodging a horde of newsmen en route. "No one has talked to me about Kansas City."

Gordon declined to say why he quit the Tigers after only two months.

A new group is negotiating for ownership of the Kansas City franchise due to the death last spring of Arnold Johnson, Chicago financier and majority stockholder.

ATLANTA (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday took under advisement an appeal by the Detroit Lions of the National Football League to stop former Louisiana State football star Johnny Robinson from playing with the Dallas Texans.

Fulmer-Robinson Fight Postponed

By BOB MYERS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Champion Gene Fulmer has a torn muscle in his right leg, forcing postponement of his fight with Sugar Ray Robinson for the NBA version of the middleweight boxing title.

The bout, scheduled for next Saturday in the sports arena, has been rescheduled for Dec. 3.

Fulmer hurt the plantaris muscle in his right calf during a workout last Saturday. At first it was thought to be merely a charley horse. Doctors examined it Monday morning, and ordered him to rest.

He was limping badly, and said he was in pain, this morning. Robinson, training at Gilman Hot Springs, wasn't immediately available for comment. But his handlers expressed disappointment.

The Saturday fight, scheduled for the 17,000-seat Sports Arena, was to have been nationally televised. In its place the promoters said they have matched two top lightweights, Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., and Len Matthews of Philadelphia. It will be 12 rounds.

The Sports Arena will not be available on Dec. 3, so the title fight will be switched to the 10,000-seat Olympic Auditorium. The promoters said holders of tickets for the Saturday fight will be given equivalent seating at the Olympic.

Fulmer pulled the muscle just as he was ready to throw a right hand, with his weight on the right leg, in the boxing drill.

The match will be the third between the two. Fulmer won the title by decision over Robinson in January of 1957 but was knocked out in five rounds to lose the title in June of the same year.

Danish Cyclist Died In Rome

ROME (AP) — Italian police notified the state attorney's office Monday night that Knud Jensen, a member of the Danish cycling team in the Olympic Games, died of "an overdose of a stimulating drug."

Jensen, 26, collapsed during the 62-mile Olympic open road race on Aug. 30. He died later in a hospital.

Hospital attendants at first attributed Jensen's death to sunstroke. Later it was learned Jensen had taken a drug known as ronico before the race. The drug, described by doctors as comparatively mild, is to stimulate blood circulation.

Groat Tests Wrist Says It Feels Good

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Dick Groat left the Pittsburgh dugout to pinch hit in the third inning of Friday night's game with Milwaukee, his knees were actually shaking. His hands were ice cold and the damp and chilly weather had nothing to do with it.

"I actually was afraid," the Pirates' captain and shortstop recalled Monday. "I hadn't swung a bat in active competition in three weeks. I didn't know how the wrist would react. I wasn't even sure I'd be able to hold onto the bat if I missed a swing."

"My head was full of doubts. I wondered whether I was doing the right thing. The doctors had told me the wrist was only 75 per cent healed. But I had to find out. I had to get into game competition. I wanted to play in the World Series more than anything else in the world. I had been dreaming of doing that since I was a little boy."

Groat, the acknowledged leader of the Pirates, the National League's leading hitter and top candidate for most valuable player honors, had not seen action since Sept. 6 because of a wrist fracture. The cast had been removed only a little more than a week ago. He hadn't swung a bat, even in practice, until four days before, and he hadn't dared catch a ball in his left hand until the previous day.

But there he was on this dank and dismal night facing Bob Buhl, one of the hardest throwers in the league. Groat's knees stopped shaking long enough for him to hit a sharp grounder to second base.

"The second baseman threw me out," said Groat, "but I felt good. I had hit the ball right on the nose and there was no pain at all."

Groat's wrist still is not fully mended and it won't be for several weeks yet. The area where the break occurred is still swollen and the muscles extending from the wrist up the forearm are still sore. But Dick can live with it. The toughest part is when he misses a swing and has to turn his wrists on the follow through. That's when he feels pain. The determined young man has found a remedy for that, though.

"I'll just have to keep hitting the ball," he said.

ROAST MALLARD CURRANT GRAVY
Duck season is a long way off but if you're to be a shore bird, you can greatly reduce your fall labors with an hour of effort now! Willow cuttings (or whips) planted in the desired oval or rectangle will grow all summer to create a natural blind. Cuttings should be 1/2-inch in diameter. Set them in holes made by pushing a broom handle several inches into the soil.

You'll have much enthusiasm for the job if you preface it with that last fat mallard from the freezer! Stuff him, roast two hours in a moderate oven (350 degrees) and bring him to the table with a big bowl of currant gravy!

The latter is made by browning three tablespoons flour in two tablespoons butter. Gradually add one cup boiling water in which two bouillon cubes have been dissolved. Season with 3/4 teaspoon black pepper. Stir in 1/4 cup currant jelly and serve just as soon as dissolved.

BAKED FILLETS
OF WALLEYE
Some of the best dishes are simple ones and you will find baked walleye fillets with celery sauce in this category! It's a dandy for the evening meal after bringing the family back from a day-long fishing trip with everyone too tired to wiggle. The dish requires a minimum of effort to prepare!

Place walleye fillets in a shallow baking pan that has been well buttered. Season the fillets with salt and pepper, then cover with a can of cream of celery soup that has been diluted with one-quarter can of milk or half-and-half cream. Sprinkle with one tablespoon minced onion and bake in medium oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes, or until fish flakes readily.

The Daily Investor

Both Somewhat Alike

By William A. Doyle
Q. What is a right? What is a warrant? What is the difference between the two?
A. It's easier to start by explaining how they are alike. Both rights and warrants give their owners the right to buy certain securities at certain prices for specified periods of time.

Rights expire in a short period of time—usually two weeks. Warrants usually stay in effect longer—in some cases forever. Rights and warrants are so much alike that one word is often used to describe the other. The following examples should explain why.

Suppose XYZ Corp. decides to raise money by selling additional common stock. The company might give its stockholders the opportunity to buy the additional stock before anybody else can buy it. The company is making a "rights offering."

It gives its stockholders the right to buy one additional share of common stock for each 10 shares each stockholder owns. Because the price of stock offered this way is usually below the market value of the stock, the rights have a value. They are traded in the market, just as stocks and bonds are bought and sold.

The stockholder may either exercise his rights by buying the additional stock or he may sell his rights. If he does neither, he may be passing up a good thing. When rights expire they become worthless.
Warrants usually come into existence when a company sells them along with other securities. XYZ Corp. might sell debentures (a fixed-income, debt obligation) and "sweeten" the offering by attaching warrants to the debentures.

Q. Are any warrants traded on the New York Stock Exchange?
A. No. When a company whose stock is listed on the Big Board makes a rights offering to its stockholders, the rights involved are usually listed—until the rights expire. But no long-term or perpetual warrants are listed on the NYSE.

Warrants are listed on the American Stock Exchange and on some of the regional stock exchanges around the country.

Q. A company in which I own stock recently made a rights offering to stockholders. For each 10 shares I (and all the other stockholders) were given the opportunity to buy one new share—at a cost of $15.

The stock, at that time, was selling for around $14.50 a share. This meant that each right I received for each share of stock I owned was worth only about five cents. Why would a company go to all the necessary trouble when each right turned out to be worth such a small amount?

A. You'll have to ask the company's board of directors to answer that one. In most cases, rights offerings are made at more advantageous terms to stockholders.

If you held a very large number of shares, it would have been worthwhile. Maybe the company's management is only interested in its big stockholders. Or maybe the idea was to discourage stockholders from exercising the rights and then to raise money by selling the stock (through underwriters) to the general public.

Dilworth Seeks Big Budget Boost

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor Richardson Dilworth sent a record high $288 million budget for 1961 to City Council yesterday. It was 22.5 million above this year's appropriations. He proposed tax increases to meet the increased spending. The mayor said the new budget was the first step in a four-year program calling for $81.5 million in new spending. This is $16.6 million more than the recent recommendations of his tax study commission.

Sen. Neff Appeals Case To State Supreme Court

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former State Sen. Samuel G. Neff and three other men on Monday appealed their convictions on charges of taking part in a highway's kickback scheme. Atty. Louis Glasco filed the appeal with the State Supreme Court on behalf of Neff, Leon Kaleta, Robert Yoho and James Macy. Glasco said he filed the appeal because he didn't believe there was enough evidence introduced at the trial to convict the four men. He said he planned to formally spell out the reasons for the appeal at a later date. The four were convicted last September on charges of collecting money from Beaver County contractors who leased equipment to the State Highways Department. Neff and Macy were convicted on charges of conspiracy to commit extortion. Yoho and Kaleta were convicted of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Last Sept. 27, Neff and Yoho drew sentences of six-months to two years apiece in prison and were each fined $500. Kaleta was fined $100 and ordered to serve two months to two years in prison. Macy was fined $500 and placed on probation. All four remained free on bond pending outcome of the appeal. Neff is a former manager of the Pennsylvania Workmen's Compensation Fund and a former chairman of the Beaver County Democratic organization. Kaleta and Yoho are former supervisors in the State Highways Department. Macy is a former Beaver County Democratic sec-

Real Estate Group Urges New Regulation

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Real Estate Commission has proposed new regulations that would ban discrimination because of race, national origin or religion in the sale or rental of housing. The proposals would go by executive action what Gov. Lawrence's administration sought to have done in legislation during the 1959 General Assembly. The administration proposal was passed by the House, 131-66, but died in the Republican-controlled Senate Labor and Industry Committee despite several attempts by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish congregations and representatives of Negro organizations to gain passage of the legislation. The proposed regulations spell out not only that it would be illegal to sell or rent housing because of bias, but also would ban mention of race, creed or color in advertising relating to real estate. The fair housing legislation was one of the priority administration proposals in 1959. The board is tentatively set to act on the proposals at a meeting in November. Members of the real estate commission are: Carl E. Shields, Butler; J. R. Montgomery, Russellton and James J. Moore, Pottstown.

Hussein Accuses Soviet Union

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan accused the Soviet Union Monday of trying to wreck the United Nations and the United Arab Republic of seeking to destroy his Hashemite kingdom. In a speech to the 98-nation General Assembly, the desert monarch said he sees a sinister parallel in the activities of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser in the Arab world. Hussein, 24, provided still another colorful touch to the proceedings of the 15th assembly. The young king, his slight figure dressed in a conservatively tailored blue business suit, was accompanied to the rostrum by a towering military aide dressed in khaki uniform and pink Arab headress. Taking the assembly spotlight just after Khrushchev, the Jordanian leader declared, "I am here to reaffirm that we reject communism." The Soviet premier walked out of the assembly before Hussein spoke and did not hear Hussein deliver his castigation of Soviet tactics.

The setting was a blaze of color — the brilliant blues, purples, yellows and reds of flowing Nigerian robes and headresses, contrasting vividly with the dark suits of foreign guests. The princess, seated behind a microphone, read for the queen a speech outlining the new government's policy. The former British colony, she told a packed assembly, "will seek to establish and preserve friendly relations with foreign powers which act in accordance with the principles of the United Nations."

Seated near the princess was Nigerian Prime Minister Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, who will handle the new nation's foreign affairs and relations with the British Commonwealth. Diplomats consider him one of the new Nigerian leaders capable of withstanding the blandishments of both East and West. Present Governor — Seated to the right of the princess — who wore a white silk taffeta evening dress and a pearl and diamond tiara — was Nigeria's present governor-general, Sir James Robertson. He will be succeeded in November by popular nationalist leader, Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe.

There was a moment of alarm shortly before the princess entered the red-carpeted hall when a loud bang echoed through the assembly. Deputies peered about anxiously but settled back when they learned it was only an exploding light bulb. Scilla and crocus, three inches. Grape-hyacinth, four inches. Tulip, five inches. Hyacinth, six inches. Daffodil, seven inches. The crocus, blue, white or yellow, is the first to bloom. We

1961 Wheat Program Stays The Same As 1960 Program

WITH Winter wheat planting getting under way, Chairman D. H. Griffith of the Monroe County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee pointed out today that the wheat program for 1961 will be essentially the same as it has been in recent years. As highlights of the program, Griffith listed the following: Marketing quotas — As a result of an 87.4 affirmative vote of wheat growers who voted in a referendum July 21 marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1961 crop and the marketing of excess wheat will be subject to a penalty. Price support — Price support will be available on 1961 crop wheat at a minimum national average rate of $1.78 per bushel, the same as the rate for the 1960 crop. Acreage Allotments — Each wheat-producing farm has an acreage allotment, representing the farm's share of the national allotment, which again in 1961 stands at 55 million acres, the minimum permitted by law. Under the marketing quota system, any farmer who keeps within his wheat acreage allotment (or does not exceed 15 acres of wheat) may market his total wheat crop without penalty. Also exempt from penalty is any farmer who obtains approval to participate in the feed wheat program and produces 30 acres or less of wheat for use on his farm. Other growers who exceed their allotments will generally be subject to a marketing quota penalty on the normal yield of the excess acres. The penalty rate for 1961 will continue at 45 percent of parity, which for 1960 worked out to a dollar-and-cents penalty rate of $1.08 per bushel. The wheat price support program for 1961 will be carried out through loans on farm—or warehouse-stored grain and through purchase agreements. Support will be available from harvest time in the summer of 1961 to the end of January 1962. The tentative support level is a minimum announced in advance of planting, which may be increased on the basis of later information next year but may not be reduced.

QUESTION: I expect to re-finish a bedroom floor soon and plan on using shellac, followed with paste wax. I have a portable waxing machine. Since this is the first time I will be using shellac, what advice can you give me?

ANSWER: We'll assume from your remark about refinishing the floor that you are taking it down to the bare wood before applying the shellac. One of the important things in the use of shellac is that it should not be used as it comes from the can or jar. It should be mixed with denatured alcohol in various proportions, depending on where it is being applied. For your purpose, about half a pint of alcohol to one quart of shel-

1961 Wool Incentive Payment Is Set

A SHORN wool incentive price of 62 cents per pound and a mohair support price of 73 cents per pound have recently been announced by the Department of Agriculture for the 1961 marketing year which begins April 1. Earl Groff, chairman, Pennsylvania agricultural stabilization and conservation committee, points out that the 1961 price for shorn wool is the same as for the first six years of the program, running from 1955 through the 1960 marketing years. The mohair price is up three cents from the 70-cent level during the first six years of the program. Payments to producers under the 1961 national wool incentive program will follow the same methods as under the current program. Shorn wool payments will be equal to a percentage of each producer's cash returns from wool sales. The percentage will be that required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool up to the incentive price of 62 cents per pound. Lamb payments to producers who sell lambs that have never been shorn will be made at a rate per hundredweight of live animals marketed to compensate for the wool on them on a basis comparable to the incentive payment per pound of shorn wool. The payments for the 1961 marketing year will be made on shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketed during the April 1, through March 31, 1962 period. Payments will be made in the summer of 1962 following the end of the marketing year. County ASC Offices are now making payments for the 1959 marketing year. Under that program, the payment rate for shorn wool was 43.2 percent, the percentage required to bring the average price up to the 62-cent incentive level. This results in a payment of $43.20 for every $100 received from the sale of shorn wool. The payment rate on unshorn lambs was 75 cents per hundredweight of live lambs marketed.

Something New In Panels Makes The Job Easier

THE INSTALLATION of grooved edge toward the area to be covered, so that it is ready to engage the tongue edge of the next panel. Where an extra strong installation is desired, adhesive can also be used. The dealer who sells the hardboard paneling usually carries the proper adhesive for this type of job.

lac will be about right. Incidentally, use a good quality denatured alcohol and don't let anyone talk you into using a cheaper substitute that he claims is "just as good." You should apply two coats of the shellac. While the first coat will appear to be dry in an hour or so, the second coat should not be applied for three or four hours. The shellac should be put on in a room where the temperature is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit — and it should not be applied on a day when it is raining or the humidity is very high. In putting on the wax, remember that two thin coats are much better than a single thick one. How often the floor will have to be waxed after that will depend on how heavy the traffic is. The time period can range from as often as once a week to as little as once a year. Generally, about once every three months will do. Also, at least once a year, the old wax should be removed and new wax applied.

A MINOR tribulation in the life of the home handyman is the occasional necessity to replace a broken window pane. Don't fret. With proper procedure and a little know-how, the job can be a simple one.

Here's a step by step plan recommended by experts:

First, wear heavy gloves to protect your hands when removing fragments of the broken pane. If some of the fragments are stubborn, tap them out with a hammer. Use a small chisel or a heavy screwdriver to remove the old putty. If the putty is hard and tough, place the chisel at an angle and tap it with a small hammer but take care not to gouge the sash. Pull out the glazier's points with a pair of pliers. In metal sash, remove the clips or unscrew the metal heading or strips. Once the old putty is removed, paint the wooden sash with linseed oil or a light paint. The new putty then will adhere better and will not dry out and crumble.

Use a rule or a steel tape, not a cloth tape, when measuring the dimensions of the opening for the new glass. Measure the width and the height in several places to compensate for any irregularities. Have the new pane cut about one eighth of an inch smaller than the vertical and horizontal measurements of the opening to make the installation easier. For small, multi-paned sash, single strength window glass is usually adequate but for metal sash and larger panes buy double strength glass.

Apply a cushion of putty to the bottom, top and sides of the frame before placing the piece of glass in position. This helps to insure a weather-tight seal when the glass is set.

Press the new pane gently but firmly into the cushion of putty. Hold the glass in place and press or drive the glazier's points into the wood with the side of a screwdriver or chisel.

Do the long sides first. In the case of metal sash, attach the clips, heading or glazing strips with a screwdriver. Two clips to a side usually are enough for small panes but larger panes should have three or four to a side. Be sure the glass is held firmly in the frame by the points and that it forms a weather-tight seal with the cushion of putty.

Knead the putty to a smooth consistency and roll strips of it between the palms of your hands to the thickness of a lead pencil. Lay the strips end to end around the sides of the sash, completing one side at a time.

Use a putty knife to press the putty firmly into position, then smooth it out, sloping the putty to the outer edge of the frame. Cut off any excess putty with each stroke, and press extra putty into any small holes or depressions.

Make sure that the putty does not extend further on the glass than the edge of the inside frame. A light application of water with a soft paint brush will remove all putty smudges from the glass. Or if you prefer, allow the putty to dry and remove the smudges from the glass with turpentine.

Allow the putty to set thoroughly, then paint it the same color as the sash.
